Information Sheet

Subdivisions:

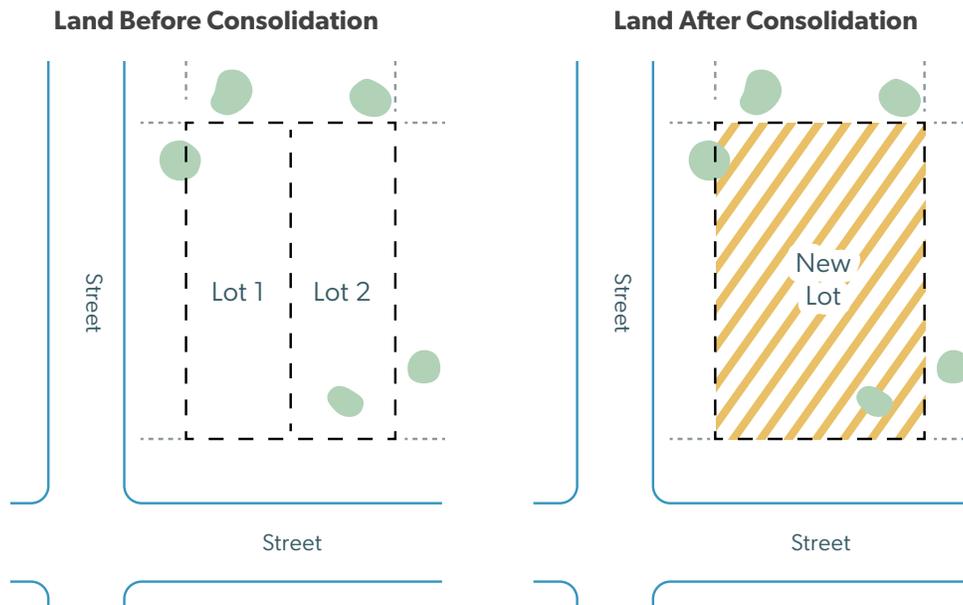

What Does It Mean to Subdivide Land?

Subdivision refers to the division of land into smaller parcels. This can take place on a large scale (e.g., a quarter section of a farmer's land being subdivided into numerous smaller residential/commercial parcels to form a new neighbourhood) or on a smaller scale (e.g., a single residential property being divided onto two or more parcels).

What Does It Mean to Consolidate Land?

Consolidation refers to merging multiple adjacent parcels to make one larger parcel. This occurs when someone wants to expand their property. For instance, if they want to build a house that is larger than what the lot can accommodate, or if they want to construct an accessory building that crosses boundary lines.

When is Subdivision or Consolidation Approval Required?

Subdivision approval is required when a number of things take place. These include:

- creating lots for new development,
- creating separate land titles for each unit of a two-unit or multi-unit dwelling,
- creating separate land titles for each dwelling on a single property, or
- joining properties or pieces of property together under one title.

Application Information:

- The complete subdivision process can be found in subsection 2.5 of Land Use Bylaw 05-2025.
- In addition to the completed application, the applicant will need to provide:
 - a Plan of Proposed Subdivision from a Registered Provincial Land Surveyor including an AutoCAD file and PDF,
 - a Certificate of Title from Information Services Corporation (ISC) or Alberta Land Titles (SPIN),
 - Landowner Authorization (if necessary), and
 - oil and gas well information from ERCB (Alberta) or Digital Well log Data Base (Saskatchewan).
- The fee for a subdivision application is indicated in the City's Fees and Charges Bylaw as amended.
- If your application is refused or you do not agree with conditions of your approval you can appeal the decision to the Subdivision and Development Appeal Board (SDAB) within twenty-one (21) days of the decision being rendered.
